Others Details	Bengaluru’s roads are in bad shape is not news anymore – it’s become more of a long-running joke. Election after election, every party that has formed the government in the state has promised lavish roads and proper infrastructure for the commuters of the city. One such grand plan was the white-topping of the streets in Bengaluru to make sure the roads are long-lasting and lesser prone to damage. There are mixture of opinions on this, one such opinion is that white topping is a threat to the environment, as it blocks the absorption of water to the ground. Eco-club conducted a competition, to know the far and against on the topping. Few participants did not welcome the project and few did. Participants brought out the real challenges of using white-topping such as, slippery, no grip, no road balance, harmful to the environment etc., and also shared their experience driving on the white-topping roads.
